COMMUNIST WOMEN ACTIVISTS AROUND THE WORLD

Francisca de Haan

Central European University, Vienna

Both histories of communism and histories of women's movements and feminisms tend to ignore or play down the role and contributions of socialist and communist women. Based on the findings in the 2023 Palgrave Handbook of Communist Women Activists around the World and my ongoing research about the Women's International Democratic Federation, I will argue that socialist and communist women played a crucial role in advancing women's rights throughout the 20th century.

FRANCISCA DE HAAN is Emerita Professor of Gender Studies and History at the Central European University (Vienna) and Fellow at the International Institute of Social History (Amsterdam). Her research interests center on histories of inter/transnational women's movements, socialist and communist women's political activism, and the Women's International Democratic Federation.
